Râjendralâl Mittra of Calcutta had the kindness to supply me with the following information. He writes: „My correspondents at Benares, Agra and Mathurâ have all disappointed me. None of them has been able to find out the verses in question. They do not occur in the College of Fort William Mss., nor are they traceable in the Sanskrit College exemplar. I asked Râjâ Râdhâkânta about the Mss. whence he quoted the Abhidhânaratnamâlâ, and he referred me to Professor Wilson, from whom he had obtained the loan of the work. There are now five Mss. of Halâyudha in Calcutta accessible to me, but the verses occur in none of these, and I am disposed to think from this circumstance, that they are perhaps not authentic.“ I am much indebted to Professor Wilson for having kindly sent me some extracts from several Râgamâlas in the E. I. H. Library, but neither these nor some others in the Bodleian Library contain precisely the same system, or the same names of the Râgâs and Râginîs. A passage in Keçava's Kalpadru (Wilson. Mss. 334. fol. 152.) bears, on the whole,
